

I'm not robot

Open

Beep once notification sound

Beep once notification sound download.

Most users are trying to find a way to completely deactivate sound notifications or change them to less annoying sound. Desact notifications and sounds of the Windows as you know, as long as an important action is made, Windows is configured to provide audio feedback by default through notification sounds. But keep in mind that doing it means that you will probably lose some notifications completely if you are not paying attention to what is happening on your screen. To be judged by user reports, this method seems to be the Preferred, when it comes to disabling sound notifications, since it allows you to do it in bulk (without the need to disable each notification individually). A quick guide to deactivate all sound notifications through the control panel: Press the Windows + R key to open a Run dialog box. Next, write «MS-Settings: Notifications» inside the text box and press ENTER to open the tabs and actions of the Settings application. Once you are within the tab notifications and actions, Scroll down to get notifications of these

